

Assignment 10

Lawrence Lemieux was a wonderful Olympic sailor champion. He was a famous man with a heart pure of kindness. He was also a highly creative man that built his own sails. But in one of his Olympic games, he was robbed of a medal that he surely deserved. Although he did not get what he deserved he had saved the lives of two others. "Lemieux returned to the course and finished 21st for the day" Lawrence had learned that although you may do some good, it may not always be seen or rewarded properly" He returned home with no medal". "Lemieux was awarded a second-place finish for race five because he was racing in second place before he pulled out to save the stranded sailors." After that Lawrence learnt that you should always help people no matter the cost because at the end of the day it will come back to you. His actions have also given us a lesson that no matter what is in front of you, you should help the ones in need behind you.
